PRICE ONE CENT.

COAL FOR FAMILY USE AT FAMINE PRICES!

Anthracite Sells at $7.50 Per Ton—125,000 Bituminous Miners to Strike—Move Will Aid Their 147,000 Idle Comrades from the "Hard" Region—Coal Trains Attacked.

The price of anthracite coal was advanced an average of $1.15 per ton to-day.

Famine prices are expected. A national convention to call a strike of the coal miners in the United States may be ordered at any moment. The necessary consent is in the hands of President Mitchell.

One hundred and twenty-five thousand soft-coal miners in Virginia and West Virginia are to quit work. This, together with the 147,000 anthracite strikers, will make 272,000 miners on strike.

Anthracite, $7.50.

The heaviest advance since the coal strike was inaugurated was made to-day in the price of anthracite coal. Domestic sizes were boosted from $1 to $1.25 a ton, the average being $1.15. The price of steam sizes was raised $1.25 to $1.35 a ton. Another advance of 50 cents was tacked onto the price of soft coal.

The prediction is that before many days the dealers will make their own prices independent of each other, as the supply is growing so short that coal users are compelled to pay whatever is asked or let their fires go out.

Domestic sizes of anthracite are now selling for $7.50 a ton, and steam sizes for $8.25 a ton, with another boost imminent. In anticipation of another heavy advance speculators are guarding a large percentage of the visible supply and will not let go of it until the top notch is reached.

The effects of the rise in the price of anthracite are apparent from the windows of the editorial rooms of The Evening World. Many chimneys are spouting black smoke, indicating that a mixture of hard coal and slack is being used.

Jeremiah Pangburn, of No. 65 Greenwich street, one of the leading retail coal dealers of the city, said that the rise in the price of anthracite had been ordered by a committee appointed at a meeting of the dealers held last week. The order, he said, was sent out this morning.

"We have been paying the railroads and the wholesalers $7 a ton for domestic sizes," said Mr. Pangburn, "and selling it for $6.35. We couldn't afford to keep this up, and the raise was the result."

For a National Coal Strike

(Special to The Evening World.)
INDIANAPOLIS, May 26.—A national convention of coal miners to order a strike of all the coal miners in the United States may now be called at any moment.

President Mitchell arrived in this city late last night. He will at once take up the subject of the convention call.

SOFT COAL STRIKE.

(Special to The Evening World.)
HUNTSVILLE, W. Va., May 26.—Following the order to suspend work June 1 unless their demands are granted, the leaders of the bituminous miners in Virginia and West Virginia to-day announced the terms formulated by the miners in convention:

The men demand an increase of from 10 to 20 per cent. in pay.

One hundred and twenty-five thousand men are affected by the strike order.

BULLET OF GYPSY WIFE PROVES FATAL

Leon Galloway, Who Was Shot by Woman He Left, Dies in Hospital.

Another murder trial in which a handsome woman figures as the defendant is soon to occupy the attention of the courts of this city. The murderess is a well-developed woman. She is a gypsy and understands full well the tricks of eye and manner that win the sympathy of men. She killed her husband—shot him in the back. She repeats her deed. It is up to a jury to determine if the oft-repeated assertion is true that a woman of physical attractiveness cannot be convicted of the crime of murder in the first degree in the city of New York.

Leon Galloway, the young man who was shot last Friday night by his gypsy wife, Kate Seale, died this afternoon in Roosevelt Hospital. Coroner Scholer ordered the wife committed from the West Side Police Court prison to the Tombs.

Galloway lived with his mother in a tenement house in West Forty-sixth street, near Eleventh avenue. In the same house lived the Seale family, English gypsies, consisting of father, mother and two daughters. Grace had a child by a husband who has not been seen for a couple of years.

Galloway's mother died and he got acquainted with the Seale woman. Her dark beauty fascinated him. He married her last November. Trouble came shortly and finally he left her. Last Friday night she met him at a fire in West Forty-third street, and in the presence of 2,000 people shot him in the back.

She held the crowd at bay with the smoking pistol and made her escape for the time, but was captured early in the morning, hiding in a marble yard near the scene of her crime.

Tax Commissioner James L. McCahill appeared in Yorkville Court this afternoon against Franz Hagenbach, whom he charged with disorderly conduct. Magistrate Brann imposed a fine of $10, which the prisoner could not pay.

SUEWAY IRONWORKERS STRIKE.

To the surprise of the contractors, several hundred ironworkers employed on the subway went on strike to-day. Chief Engineer Henry B. Seaman, for Contractors Holbrook, Cabot & Cady, said to an Evening World reporter: "We do not know why the men struck. It seems now that the unions imagine themselves aggrieved. Why, I have been unable to ascertain."

TRIED SUICIDE IN THE STREET.

William McCarthy, twenty-five years old, of No. 243 East Eighty-ninth street, tried suicide this afternoon by cutting his wrist with a razor at Park avenue and Eighty-ninth street. He was taken to Presbyterian Hospital a prisoner.

MAD DOG CAUSED A COMMOTION.

A small dog ran into Eighth avenue at Thirty-fifth street this afternoon and was taken with a fit. The crowded street was quickly deserted and the dog ran into a nearby store. At the cry of "Mad dog!" women and men jumped on tables, counters and chairs, and there was a lot of shrieking and shouting. Then he ran out and fell into the basement. Policeman McGowan shot him.

AGED MASON DIES OF APOPLEXY.

Henry Perkins, sixty years old, a thirty-third degree Mason, and once Masonic Commander of the State of Ohio, died to-day at his residence, No. 7 West One Hundred and Eighth street, from a stroke of apoplexy. For two years he had been an invalid. A year ago he and his wife moved from Akron, O., where he was well known in business and Masonic circles, and came to New York. After a short walk in Central Park to-day, accompanied by his wife, Mr. Perkins returned to his apartments, where he was stricken and died before the arrival of a physician. His body will be sent back to Akron for interment.

ENGEMAN UNDER ARREST MISSED BROOKLYN HANDICAP.

The reason why William A. Engeman, president of the Brighton Beach Racing Association, did not see the Brooklyn Handicap run was because he was under arrest charged with assault at the time. On his way to the track on a crowded street car Mr. Engeman got into a controversy with Thomas Corbett, a bookkeeper, of No. 451 Fifth street. Mr. Engeman says that Corbett insulted him, and admits that he slapped him, whereupon Corbett called a policeman and had him arrested.

SAVED FROM DEATH IN MACHINERY.

With his right hand torn off, Eugene McAleheny, seventeen years old, was this afternoon rescued from machinery in which he had got caught at Reynolds's Cornice Factory on Bradford avenue, Flushing, L. I. The boy was at work when the accident happened. He is the sole support of his mother, with whom he lived on Grove street. He was taken to the Flushing Hospital.

The organization of the Equitable National Bank, capitalized at $200,000, has been completed with Cornelius Van Cott president and John Carroway cashier. Charles E. Lambert and W. G. McAdoo are members of the Board of Directors. The bank will be opened on Wednesday at No. 805 Broadway.

Left Hurriedly When the Defendant Began His Story of How He Shot Clark—Refused to Hear Evidence from His Lips.

Not wishing to hear her husband tell about the shooting of John Clark, Mrs. John F. Clancy left the courtroom when he was called to the witness stand in his own defense this afternoon. As he took his seat Mrs. Clancy half rose and moved across the aisle as though to approach him. She was prevented by a court officer. Then she hurriedly left the courtroom. Clancy said he shot Clark in self defense.

PRISONER'S BRIDE
PICTURE OF HOPE.

The grimness of the Court of General Sessions, where John F. Clancy is on trial for his life, was softened to-day by two feminine pictures, the one of Hope, the other of Sorrow. The prisoner's beautiful bride was the picture of Hope.

Reassured the Bride. Editors, politicians, county officials and policemen of Queens County flocked to court to the support of the accused man, who was beloved by his followers. Former judges and district attorneys of Queens were among those who came voluntarily to court prepared to testify in favor of the defendant.

In strong contrast was the other picture—sorrow in all its loneliness.

Three women in deepest black, whose happiness in life died when Clancy's bullet killed John Clark, sat there, ungreeted and uncheered.

They were the mother and sister of Clark and Miss Annie Mutch, whose wedding day was set when her fiancé was slain.

They heard the dramatic story of the shooting told by Leo Albert Wilkinson, thirteen years old.

Unbelievably, with the air of truthfulness, the boy told his story: "I saw the men standing together. Suddenly Mr. Clark struck Mr. Clancy in the face."

"Then he gave him a second blow, which knocked Mr. Clancy down. 'Then I heard Mr. Clancy say: 'For God's sake, Jack, let up; don't kill me.'"

"Then I heard Mr. Clark say: 'Now, I'll finish you. It's time I finished you.'"

"Then he ran toward Mr. Clancy, putting his hand to his hip pocket. Mr. Clark did."

"Then Mr. Clancy pulled his pistol from his pocket and shot Mr. Clark. Clancy's young wife leaned forward and listened intently to the child witness's narrative. The jury remained like fixtures in their seats. The stillness of a cell pervaded the large courtroom. On cross-examination the testimony of the boy was not shaken in the least."

The second juvenile witness of the day was Harry Heeb, eleven years old, residing with his parents at No. 32 East Twenty-seventh street. At the time of the shooting he lived at No. 314 East Thirty-fourth street.

"He was coming from a candy store below Thirty-fourth street at the time, the boy testified, when he saw the shooting. This is his story: "I saw four men near the fire hydrant, and among those men was that man sitting near you (indicating the defendant, who sat near Mr. Levy). I saw the larger man strike the smaller man. Mr. Clancy fell in the gutter. Then Mr. Clark pushed Mr. Clancy a second time and then put his hand in his hip pocket. Then Mr. Clancy pulled out his pistol and shot Mr. Clark. Yes, it was a big man who hit the little man first."

"Charles M. Smith of Long Island City, who was with Clancy when the shooting took place, said that Clark had attacked Clancy without warning. "Clark struck him the first blow on the nose," Smith testified, "knocking him in the gutter. Clancy rose and Clark hit him the second blow on the nose. Clancy said to Clark: 'For God's sake don't kill me.' Clark tried to strike Clancy again, when the defendant told him to stop. Clancy then tried to kick him, when Clancy fired again. Clark fell. Clancy went to a policeman and told him what had occurred."

Clancy Goes on the Stand. A flutter of excitement pervaded the courtroom when Mr. Levy's clerk handed on the shoulder of the defendant and said: "Mr. Clancy, take the stand."

Clancy arose promptly and walked easily and with a sprightly step to the witness chair. His young wife partly rose in her seat as she watched her husband take his seat. Immediately upon the defendant taking the stand his wife arose from her seat and tried to cross the aisle as if to approach him. She was prevented.

JOHN W. ROGERS, TRAINER FOR W. C. WHITNEY, DES.

Cameron Wins Patchogue Stakes at Gravesend—Long Shots Successful.

(Special to The Evening World.)
GRAVESEND RACE TRACK, May 26. J. W. Rogers, trainer for William C. Whitney, died at 2 o'clock this afternoon. Mr. Rogers had been suffering from a complication of diseases. He lived with his family in Westchester village.

John W. Rogers was one of the really great American trainers of thoroughbred racehorses. The others are John H. Hughes, now in England, and James Rowe. Rogers gained fame as the partner of S. S. Brown, the Pittsburgh millionaire coal king. Rogers and Brown had a great stable and carried through with old Troubadour. When Rogers got the horse he had a very bad leg.

He was carefully nursed into good condition and with infinite patience and rare skill prepared for the Suburban. Troubadour ran like a whirlwind and won the classic. Brown cleaned up a fortune in bets.

After that Rogers was partner with Bob Rose. This firm owned Clifford and other high class racers. Two years ago Mr. Rogers became trainer for W. C. Whitney, taking charge of all the millionaire's extensive turf interests.

Mr. Rogers was a man of means, and was the average one, and there was very popular on and off the turf. He has always been spoken of as being "very high class."

His health had been bad for several years. Three weeks ago he was confined to his bed. His death was unexpected.

LONG SHOTS WIN
AT GRAVESEND.

(Special to The Evening World.)
GRAVESEND RACE TRACK, N. Y., May 26.—In comparison with Saturday, Gravesend to-day was as a mill pond to the turbulent ocean. The crowd was only the average one, and there was plenty of space to move around without treading on a neighbor's toes.

The card promised some good racing, though there was only one stake, the Patchogue, on the card. The weather was superb and the track very fast. Betting was a bit light, but this is always the case on Monday, when everything in the racing line is dull.

The horses which were on the cards wrecked at one of the long island crossings were yearlings, the property of J. B. Higgins. They were en route to Sheepshead Bay, where they were to be sold next week. They are now safely quartered in the sales paddock outside the Sheepshead Bay course. None of the yearlings was injured seriously; some were scratched and bruised.

Some of the yearlings in the wreck were from the Melbourne stud, the property of Col. W. S. Barnes, consigned for sale at Sheepshead Bay.

A telegram received from Eddie Hughes here this afternoon states that there is no truth in the rumor concerning the withdrawal of W. K. Vanderbilt from racing in France. Hughes says that it has been raining five weeks steadily in France, which has made the tracks impossible to race on.

The New York and Brooklyn teams

Jim Tully was very badly interfered with at the sixteenth pole, but Rice made no claim as it was his own fault for trying to jam through on the rail.

HONORS TO PAUNCFOTE.

Britain Accepts Proposal to Send Body Home on U. S. Warship.

LONDON, May 26.—The British Government has gratefully accepted the United States' offer of a warship to bring home the body of Lord Pauncefoot, late British Ambassador at Washington.

Deep appreciation was expressed at the Foreign Office at this and other signs of American sympathy.

A Washington dispatch to-day says Lord Pauncefoot's body will be sent to England on either the Olympia or the Brooklyn.

SCHOONER OFF SHOAL.

VINEYARD HAVEN, Mass., May 26.—One of the two schooners which struck on Vineyard Shoal, holding the Frigate to-day and made sail eastward.

The other schooner, the Frigate, which put out in a small boat to row ashore yesterday, have not been heard from since. It is feared they were lost while trying to land through the surf on the south side of the island.

The other schooner, the Frigate, remained in the same position to-day as yesterday.

CITY'S WARM WELCOME TO FRENCH WARSHIP GAULOIS

Arrangements Completed for the Reception and Parade in Honor of the Visitors.

The French cruiser Gaulois passed up the bay and off the Battery at 12:10 o'clock this afternoon. She was escorted by the United States battleship Kentucky, the armored cruiser Olympia, the Admiral Dewey's former flagship, the gunboat Albatross and the gunboat Albatross.

The Gaulois came from Annapolis and is here to participate in the Rochambeau celebration. She passed by Governor's Island with a crowded deck and fired a saluting gun from a hull cannon. Almost simultaneously the Governor's Island saluting gun was fired and both sides kept it up for some seconds.

The Gaulois's salutations were very pretty, as she fired first from a hull gun, then from a deck gun and then from a gun in one of the masts. The firing drew a big crowd to the Battery wall, which was lined several persons deep as the Frenchman passed up.

Capt. Fournier, the Gaulois's commander, ran up a signal of "Thanks" as he passed the Sandy Hook marine operators, who had hung out a signal of "Welcome."

The Gaulois is an 11,000-ton vessel, 355 feet long and has a speed of 18 knots an hour. She carries a crew of 622 men. The French battleship did not fire any salute on passing the Narrows, nor did the forts at Wadsworth and Hamilton salute the incoming fleet. They anchored off Thirty-fourth street.

The Gaulois anchored well toward the Jersey shore. When the anchors were dropped the bands on the Olympia and the Kearsarge played the national air of France. The Olympia anchored off Weehawken and the other vessels near by.

Launches were soon dropped and in a short time the official visit had been paid. Soon after the vessels anchored the French visitors on board, passed up the Hudson on its way to West Point. The party left at four o'clock for West Point via the West Shore road.

HOW NEW YORK WILL HONOR HER GUESTS.

New York is prepared to receive the French visitors when they reach the city to-morrow afternoon. They will be met at the Battery by the Mayor's secretary, who will escort them to the City Hall, where the official reception will be held at 2:30 o'clock. After the presentation of the delegation to the Mayor and the Honorary Committee in the Governor's Room, the visitors will be escorted to the Aldermanic Chamber. The President of the Board will deliver a welcome on behalf of the Aldermen and Mayor Low will welcome them on behalf of the city. The French Ambassador will respond.

Meanwhile the regiments of the New York National Guard of Manhattan and Brooklyn, marines from the battleships Kearsarge and Alabama and the cruiser Olympia and the French cruiser Gaulois will be drawn up on the west side of Broadway, the line extending from
